Nouns

A noun is a word used to name a person, animal, place, thing, and abstract idea.

Types Of Nouns

There are many different types of nouns. As you know, you capitalize some nouns, such as "Canada" or "Louise," and do not capitalize others, such as "badger" or "tree" (unless they appear at the beginning of a sentence). In fact, grammarians have developed a whole series of noun types, including the proper noun, the common noun, the concrete noun, the abstract noun, the countable noun (also called the count noun), the non-countable noun (also called the mass noun), and the collective noun. You should note that a noun will belong to more than one type: it will be proper or common, abstract or concrete, and countable or non-countable or collective.

You always write a proper noun with a capital letter, since the noun represents the name of a specific person, place, or thing.

A common noun is a noun referring to a person, place, or thing in a general sense.

A concrete noun is a noun which names anything (or anyone) that you can perceive through your physical senses: touch, sight, taste, hearing, or smell.

An abstract noun is a noun which names anything which you can not perceive through your five physical senses, and is the opposite of a concrete noun, such as, liberty, love or justice.

A countable noun (or count noun) is a noun with both a singular and a plural form, and it names anything (or anyone) that you can count.

A non-countable noun (or mass noun) is a noun which does not have a plural form, and which refers to something that you could (or would) not usually count, such as, oxygen, furniture or gravel.

A collective noun is a noun naming a group of things, animals, or persons, such as, flock, jury, committee or class.

Nouns A

Circle all the nouns in the following sentences.

1. The announcer said that the bus for Minneapolis would leave in thirty minutes.
2. Dr. Cooper was in college with my father.
3. John wanted to change the ribbon on his typewriter, but the ribbon would not cooperate.

Conjunctions

You can use a conjunction to link words, phrases, and clauses.

You use a coordinating conjunction (and, but, or, nor, for, so, yet) to join individual words, phrases, and independent clauses.

A subordinating conjunction introduces a dependent clause and indicates the nature of the relationship among the independent clause(s) and the dependent clause(s). The most common subordinating conjunctions are: after, although, as, because, before, how, if, once, since, than, that, though, until, when, where, whether, and while.

Correlative conjunctions always appear in pairs -- you use them to link equivalent sentence elements. The most common correlative conjunctions are: both...and, either...or, neither...nor, not only...but also, so...as, and whether...or.

Underline the conjunctions (coordinating, correlative, subordinating) and conjunctive verbs.
